MRS. GEO. BOLIVER.

In all the walks of life there is danger. Some of one kind, and some another; some heart breaking in their consequences, and others comparatively trivial. Amidst them all, the greatest is the losing of the partner of one's bosom, the companion of one's life, and the sharer of all the trials and troubles that, too frequently, make uneasy the heart of a faithful husband. The grim monster, death, will invade, without any pang of remorse, the abode of the lowest and the highest, whenever it suits the dark winged Angel to command him.

There are none too high or too low for him to touch and blot from existence forever. The fairest flower that ever opened its gaze to the morning sun, and impregnated the air with the sweetness of its perfume, has often been snatched from its native stem before ripened and full in bloom. Untimely as this might be, and as much as the parent stem might lament the loss of its own peculiar flower, yet there is a consolation in the fact, that, even though taken up by an unkind hand, its fate can but be to dissolve into its original elements of dust, to rise again, or help to give life in some future day, to a tree more beautiful than that upon which it first grew.

The figure is imperfect, but nevertheless truthful. Mrs. Geo. Boliver, the wife of our highly esteemed citizen and officer, Geo. Boliver, Esq., in the bloom and sweetness of womanhood has been snatched suddenly from our midst. She, who for many years has been the bosom companion, and sharer of the confidence, of our friend, is no more! The face that has cheered and gladdened the heart of an honest and devoted husband, from the first moment that the two became as one, is now cold and lifeless in the grave! A mother, whose maternal kindness and love prompted her to watch over her children with all the affection and devotion of a true woman, is gone! An honored and esteemed member of society is gone! And lastly, the guiding star of the life and hopes of a faithful father. Of course the blank, the place made void in his heart, can never again be filled. His prattling infants, the living pledges of a departed wife's affection, will, full often remind him of their mother's face. But let us not invade further upon the holiness of our friend's grief. It is too delicate a thing to touch upon. Nothing but the heart of a true and faithful husband can form a proper conception of its acuteness. His wife is gone! That is enough for us to say. To him we extend our warmest sympathies, for his little children, we invoke the protection of Heaven, to the friends of his cold and lifeless wife, we hope the knowledge of the fact that she is now better, far better off, than while on earth, will afford a mournful satisfaction. Mrs. Boliver was buried at the Presbyterian Church yard on last Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. White, agent for Singer's Sewing Machine, and D. W. Robinson, Tailor, has moved into the new store of the Elliott's Truck House.

POST MASTER DEMARS.—We are gratified to learn that Mr. Demars has never contemplated resigning the Post Mastership at this place. Mr. Demars has been a faithful officer, and we have no doubt that the public will share in our gratification consequent upon ascertaining the fact that he does not intend to leave his office until removed.

A CARD.—Owing to the circus exhibition, the Fair will open at 10 o'clock, A. M. instead of 12 M. as previously advertised; and the time of entry for PREMIUMS is extended until 5 o'clock P. M. on Tuesday. Exhibitors residing in or near Orangeburg, and all others who can do so, are requested to enter their articles on Monday.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE O. A. S.
Hansways are getting rather frequent in our town now a days, and we think having very skittish horses should take care when they hitch them to do so securely. Pedestrians are put in extreme danger by horses running away, and especially on our main street, which is more or less crowded at all times of the day. Last week two ladies came very near being injured, and saved themselves only by having the presence of mind to take refuge on the steps of the Court House Square. We hope parties having skittish horses will be more careful hereafter.

ATTENTION.—HO FOR THE FAIR.
Mr. T. W. Albergetti gives notice that he expects to furnish refreshments and a dinner at the Fair. Tickets for dinner 75 cents, other refreshments extra. Buy your tickets for dinner at the door. I will sell confectionary, cakes, fruit, lemonade, hot coffee and ice cream if the weather is suitable. Come and get a dinner, do not suffer from hunger when food is at hand.

Save your pennies children, and grown folks too; for the circus is coming on the 29th. The wonder of the arena will be displayed, daring feats of horsemanship, perilous leaps from the flying trapeze, amusing jokes from the clown, wonderful performances of the trained dogs, all will be shown. The camels, monkeys, (we see them every day about town, though they are a little different from those with the circus) leopards, tigers, lions, bears, sturgeons (not Geo. W.) and snakes from the torrid Zone. Everything to interest and amuse the little ones and the big ones too, so don't fail to visit the circus, when it comes.

By consulting another portion of today's paper, it will be seen that the celebrated James Robinson and his unmoth circus, Paris exposition and trained animal show will visit our town. Mr. Robinson's name is too familiar, and his reputation too well established to require any superfluous announcement from our hands. He is the acknowledged "champion bareback equestrian of the world," wearing the medals and trophies of the entire universe. No man that ever lived has achieved so much greatness as James Robinson, whose performance is alone worth the price of admission. But not relying on his own great name to draw the people, and wonderful accomplishments to satisfy them, he has collected together the leading stars of the arena world, to blend their great acquisitions into one monster organization, and give the people more amusement for their money than any company on the road. They travel exclusively by rail, having special day and night coaches, elegant stock cars to transport their valuable ring stock and costly chariot, arriving in town thoroughly refreshed and in a fit state to give a first class performance in every respect. Men and horses are in a presentable condition, and not subjected to the tiresome travel of bad wagon roads, sleeping the routes through in uncomfortable condition, and preparing for the performance in a "muddled" state. Barnum, the great showman, has imitated the example of Mr. Robinson and adopted the railway system. Mr. C. H. Norman, the well known museum manager, has control of all the curiosities connected with Robinson's great show, which will be in our town on the 29th instant.
